

Descendants of Anders (Jonnas Ant) Gustaf Granholm

INTRODUCTION

Anders Gustaf Granholm was the son of Johan Granholm who was the first person in our ancestry to use the name Granholm. Johan's father was Granbacka, his father Granö. Different names were probably taken as the farms were subdivided. Anders or as he was called Jonnas Ant was the first Granholm of whom we have some definite knowledge. A story on our Homepage about him is copied here from Mia Jansson's Memories, Mia remembers her paternal grandfather and grandmother. He had a country store in the Granö/Terjärv village. Those entrepreneurial genes seem to have been carried on for several generations.

Another sample of this, also copied here, is a land lease contract between him and my wife's great grandfather Antti Geddala. This excerpt is from the story "Karl Johan Granholm and his home."

The listing here about his descendant is of course an ever growing project. It is based on information from Teodor Granholm's in Släkten Granö, and a book from a Karl Johan Granholm family reunion in Terjärv in 1982. If you have additional information I will be happy to include it (LEGranholm@comcast.net). I am not planning on expanding this to include anything more than names and dates. If children are adopted, that can be specified. The genealogy program picks up "bloodline" and other relationships.

A descendant list is like a pyramid with a wide base. On the other hand a list of ancestors of one person is like a regular but inverted pyramid. One such from my father Anton back is included in the Genealogy section and can be seen by clicking on Anton Granholm ancestors. Note the extensive index list at the end.

My Grandfather (Paternal), born October 25, 1841

My grandfather's name was Anders Granholm, but he was called Jonnas Ant. He was of average height and had dark, curly hair with unusually clear blue eyes. His disposition was good and happy, and strong coffee was his favorite drink. He was a sober and fair-minded person. In Granö village, he owned a country store and had a small farm with a horse, a few cows and some sheep. In the red house were the store, a kitchen and a bedroom.

Wheeling and dealing was in his blood. Sometimes in the summer he would pack up his goods and leave to wander all around the country. Vindala appears to have been a particular favorite of his. That is where my father also was a shopkeeper's apprentice in his teenage years, and where he had to go through many difficult times, especially amidst jealous gangs of boys, because of his honesty. Among other nasty tricks played on him was an incident, which occurred when a wire was strung across a lake where it was known that he skated. In the darkness he did not see the wire and came toward it at a fast speed with his neck on a level with the wire. He was thrown head over heels (the Swedish reads "hand over fist") onto the hard ice. He lost consciousness but not his life.

He also went to Confirmation School in Vindala, and because of this he learned Finnish in his youth, which later in his life was of great benefit to him.

Earlier when the war in Turkey took place, my grandfather took my father along for the trip to Petersburg, nowadays called Leningrad, where they were making and packing ammunition boxes which were to be sent to Turkey. My father was then only a child of 11, but he still got to go along on that trip.

A rich Russian military family tried in every way to adopt him because he was a clever boy, and they promised to let him study and get as much education as he might want. Finally he was himself allowed to make the choice, but it was impossible for him to leave his close ones and friends (God perhaps intended it thus for the Granholm family).

They traveled via Helsingfors on the way from Petersburg. My father, who was then 12 years old, stayed there and worked. He began to stamp boards in Sörnäs lumberyard in order to buy new shoes, which he badly needed with all his wanderings. He had a pair of beautifully made boots in mind which he would have to work hard to become the owner of. Finally that day arrived. He could never forget how happy he was that day when he got his new shoes. But that pleasure didn't last long. In three days he noticed that something was wrong, and when he looked to see what the problem was, he discovered that the soles were made entirely of bark, only a thin, thin sole and the rest was bark. That's where all his earnings had gone. That day the 12-year-old sat down on a stack of boards and cried the bitterest tears he has ever cried, according to stories he has told.

My grandfather once went to Vasa, also on some business, and took my father along, who was then 17 years old. My father, who had always been interested in horses, was allowed in the company of some other boys, to bring the horses' home from the field when evening came. He rode the lead horse but fell off its back, and the other five ran full speed behind him and jumped over him without even touching him. My father remembered "those kinds of Gods" often.

My grandfather was unusually fond of children. When I was about seven or eight years old, I spent a whole week there and learned to skate at Risback lake. When that week was over my legs were so sore that I couldn't walk. My grandfather had his Pälle (a horse) that was much better than the busses and cars in the world today. My grand-father died at the age of 60 of a stroke.
